Justin McCarthy Expresses Full Confidence in Gladstone.

MICHAEL DAVITT WILL NOT CONTEST PARNELL'S SEAT IN PARLIAMENT.

He Does Not Believe the Latter Inten Resign-Rigid Passport Regulations in Germany-Rumors of a Cenflict Be tween the English and Portuguese-Foreign News.

LONDON, March 21.—At the annual Home Rule Union meeting at the National Libera LONDON, March 21.—At the annual Home Rule Union meeting at the National Liberal Club last night, Henry Campbell Bannerman presiding, Justin McCarthy expressed perfect confidence in Mr. Gladstone's intentions. At the same time Mr. McCarthy said he did not attach great importance to written assurances, but looked far beyond the promises of any statesman whom death might remove to morrow to the intentions and principles of the great English people. Speaking in regard to the appointment of judges, McCarthy said he did not approve of the American system of popular election, and claimed that Ireiand only desired for her Ministers the privilege of nominating judges to the sovereign.

The Parnellites are much encouraged by the news from America. The funds collected there are to be entrusted to the Lord Mayor of Dublin, the High Chief of that city. Count Plerkett and ex-Lord Mayor Kennedy as treasurers. The McCarthyites claim that the wealth, influence and intelligence of the country are on their side; but so far the contributions to the McCarthyite cause have not flowed in to any large amount, since the first assessment on the clergy.

DAVITT ON PARNELL.

London, March 21.—Mr. Michael Davitt said yesterday that he did not intend to be a candidate for the seat now held by Parnell in Parliament in the event of the latter's resignation. He did not believe that Parnell was yoing to resign, as Parnell knew well enough that he could not be re-elected. Nor did he, Mr. Davitt, wish to enter Parliament at this time. Referring to Mr. Parnell's delegation to the United States, Mr. Davitt said: "The gentlemen composing Mr. Farnell's deputation to the United States estimate that 80 percent of the Irish-Americans are supporting Mr. Parnell. This estimate is greatly exaggerated; the number should be nearer 3 percent. I will not believe that 5,500 was subscribed at the meeting. In Cooper Union last night until I count the money myself. It is a very easy thing to write a meeting. I have a recollection during my own experience of a meeting held in Cooper Union Hall, which was said to have been attended by 3,600 persons when gily 500 were present. By far the greater number of Irishmen in England are against Mr. Parnell. Out of 500,000 Irish in London Mr. Parnell received only 500 names. The Parnellites will not be able to change the situation of affairs in North Silgo. Mr. Parnell's candidate, Alderman Dillon, will be beaten by 2,000 votes. My advice to working men is to abstain from strikes for three years to organize and increase their funds. Then they will be in a good position to place their demands before their employers. The question of land is at the bottom of all labor disfaulties. If the labor problem is not solved by legislation then will be the time for working men to provide a remedy by the nationalization of land."

THE GRAND MANEUVERS.

It is now officially stated that the grand imperial maneuvers of the coming autumn are to be executed by the Fourth, or Province of Saxony, Army Corps and the Eleventh, or Hesse-Cassel, Corps, to which is also attached the Hesse-Darmstadt contingent. Each corps will parade before the Emperor, and they will finally operate against each other for three days. In addition the Emperor will probably inspect the two Bavarian Corps, a thing that his grandfather never did, out of consideration for the feelings of the Bavarians, although this sensitiveness is very much weaker than it was in the old Kaiser's reign.

MONTHEAL, March 21.—It is reported that the United States Customs authorities have issued a peremptory order that detailed in-voices must accompany all shipments in bond carried through the State of Maine for in-spection. This is regarded as the first re-tallatory measure for the Liberals' defeat, the Rev. Mr. Harrison, on the charge of preaching in the street. The Irish preaching has been obnoxious to the Catholics of Arklow, who constitute nearly all the population, and at whom the sermons seemed to be aimed. The police and soldiers have been called on to protect the ministers, and riots have occurred. They were summoned for obstructing the road and sentenced to pay a fine of £1, but preferred to go to jail for fourteen days instead. They went to prison singing "Halleiujah."

The information, it says, is obtained from perfectly trustworthy fources and may be accepted as absolutely true. The reasons alleged for this action are that Mr. Proctor finds his business interests in Vermont have suffered greatly from the lack of his personal attention. WILL BE DEPOSED.

The Position in Which Dr. Macqueary's Views Have Placed Him. CLEVELAND, O., March 21.—Bishop Leonard, when asked what he would take in regard to the Rev. Howard Macqueary's resignation, said: "Mr. Macqueary cannot resign. Any minister who ceases to betieve the doctrines of the Episcopal Church has the privilege of renouncing the ministry and being honorably dismissed. Mr. Macqueary was given an opportunity to renounce the ministry before the trial, but he did not avail himself of the opportunity. He cannot now resign, but will be deposed at the end of six months unless he retracts his expressed opinions. He can resign the parish and desert the communion of the church, but cannot resign from the ministry."

Senator Cary on Free Coinage.

New York, March 21.—Senator Cary of Wyoming is spending a few days in the city on his way home from Washington. He is one of the few Western Senators who voted against free coinage. He is one of the largest members of the Senate and in build is very like our own Senator Hiscock. He has a massive head and is of commanding presence.

"The so-called free coinage craze in the West has been very largely exaggerated," said the Senator. "The great mass of the clear headed and conservative element is in favor of giving the present law a thorough trial, believing that it will meet fully the business requirements of the country. The Western people do not believe that the Government may place its stamp upon a piece of metal and make it worth its face value. The thoughtful Western business man believes in sound money as much as his brother in the East, only the West believes in a larger circulating medium. The talk of some of the Republican silver Senators about their constituents wanting to form an alliance with the South in order to secure free coinage is idle. The people of the West know that it is to the Northeast that they have to look when they need financial aid. If we want to build manufactories or railroads or develop our mines it is to New York, Boston or Philadeiphia that we come to get the money uestion has been elected President or ever will be. Gen. Weather for the Bace. LONDON, March 21.—As has been the case for nearly half a century, all sporting Lon-lon, and many thousands of inabitants of both city and country not in that category, both city and country not in that category, turned out at an early hour this morning, notwithstanding the threatening aspect of the weather, to see the great aquatic event of the year, the boat race between the university crews of Oxford and Cambridge. Long before the time at which it was expected the signal for the start would be given, the bridge at Putney, the railways on both sides of the river and the Hammersmith Bridge swarmed with men, women and children. Out on the stream were innumerable chartered stemmers and nondescript small craft, loaded down with sight-seers, paddling about and waiting the proper moment to follow in the wake of the umpire's steamer and of that which carried the representatives of the press.

The numerous floating platforms bordering.

The numerous floating platforms bordering along the river banks were also crowded to their utmost capacity with eager spectators. Enthusiastic partisans of the contesting crews sported the colors of their favorites, and wherever the eye rested was seen lavishly displayed in banners, scarfs, rosettes and all sorts of graceful devices and festoonings, the dark blue of the Oxonians side by side with the light blue of the Cambridges.

with the light blue of the Oxonians side by side with the light blue of the Cambridges.

The race was over the usual course, which starts at a point about 100 yards above the Putney Bridge, near London, and finishes about the same distance above the Ship Inn, at Mortlake. The course, as most carsmen know, is somewhat like an "S" in shape. The distance is about four and one-quarter miles. The course is bounded by Middlesex and Surrey Counties, hence the stations are termed the Middlesex and Surrey stations. In the first mile the course is in favor of the right hand, Middlesex Station. The Surrey side is the best for the next two miles and the Middlesex water is the most advantageous for the last mile and a quarter. Only four steamers were allowed to follow the race. These, of course, were in addition to the unpire's launch. One of these steamboats was occupied by representatives of the press. A second was devoted to old university oarsmen and the two remaining vessels were set apart for the officers of the different college boat clubs of the two universities.

ALL CLASSES THERE.

The Thames Conservancy Board policed the course and assigned proper positions to the many hundreds of steamers and barges loaded with oarsmen and their admirers, which were anchored or moored along the river. In addition, the house tops, tow paths, streets and other points of vantage near the Thames about Putney itself and at Hammersmith, Barnes, Mortlake and other places were crowded with spectators. As on many previous occasions thousands of carriages of every description, from the donkey dart loaded with aristocrats, were to be seen liming the river banks and the most convenient places. As usual, Oxford's admirers displayed a wealth of dark blue ribbons, rosettes and other ornaments while the friends of Cambridge made an equally lavish display of light bridge made an equally lavish display of light blue silk. Such bets as were exchanged were made at the heavy odds of nearly 5 to 1 on Oxford which had provalled for the past week of barges and steamboats was moored along the course, and though the numerous styles of vehicles were represented here, there and everywhere, the attendance as a whole did not equal that of former years, owing to the early hour at which the race was rowed and to the prevalence of a sleet storm in the forenoon, and bitter cold weather. However, the old "Father Thames" broad bosom was crowded with various craft from the dingsy to the gaudy barge, the scene being happily now and then lit up by streaks of flashing sunshine.

with various craft from the dingsy to the gaudy barge, the scene being happily now and then lit up by streaks of flashing sunshine.

During the night and up to a short time before the start there had been occasional flurries of snow and hail, while heavy squalls of wind had roughened the surface of the river. This latter was a condition entirely in favor of the heavy weight Oxonians. Oxford won the toss, and therefore took the Middlesex shore with its advantages of smoother water and favoring curves.

By the time the crews were seated and the boats ranged for the start, the clouds had rolled away and brilliant sunshine salivened the scene and brought cheers to the thousands who were beginning to be uncomfortably conscious of the Marchbreeze, chilled as it was wafted from bank to bank of the Thames. THE START.

All things being in readiness and the moment having arrived, at 11.092. m. the sharp report of a pistol was heard from the deck of the umpire's steamer; the starters on the stark boats removed their grasp upon the sterns of the racing shells, and before they had assumed an upright position both crews, in the midst of tremendous roaring of the multitude, had shot away from Putney bridge and were speeding on their way to Mortlake, the goal—over four miles distant, both boats got away well together, with Cambridge speedily taking the lead, her crew pulling in splendid form until Hammersmith bridge was reached. As the boats dashed out from under the great edifice the enormous throng of people which looked down upon the struggling collegians burst out into cheers and yells when the light blue was seen to be a full quarter length absed of Oxford. But now the steady work, great sadurance and reserved force of the Oxonians began to tell steadily, the big fellows pulled up beside their rivals until their splendid stroke placed their boat nose by nose with that of the Cannabs. Thence the Oxford crew laboriously forged ahead through the rough water until they had secured a clear lead of Cambridge, a lead which they tion Revealed in the Case of the Death of Miss Helen Nellson Potts-Her Mother's Sworn Statement-The Hus-

New York, March 21.—Helen Neilson Potts, a handsome and accomplished girl of 19 and a student at the Comstock Finishing School for Young Dadies in this city, died on Sunday, Young Badles in this city, died on Sunday, Feb. 10 last, from an overdose of morphine. It was known that she had taken a pill at 10 o'clock the night before, supposed to have been compounded from a prescription given her by Carlyle W. Harris, a young medical student, who at the time figured as a friend student, who at the time figured as a triend of the Potts family. There was no autopsy afterwards, but a coroner's jury, made up of an equal number of physicians and licensed druggists, met nearly four weeks later—on Feb. 27—and found the following verdict:

We the jury, etc., and that Helen Potts met ber death frem opiam poisoning. We also find that the amount of morphine known to have been in her possession was not sufficient to cause death.

There seems never to have been any really serious effort to discover whether a larger amount of opium than was called for in any one—or indeed, in all six—of the pills prescribed, had been administered to the hapless girl by accident or otherwise. That was six weeks ago. With the result of the inquest on Feb. 27 the authorities in New York were content to inquire no further in the curious circumstances of the tragedy. No intimation had ever been given to the public of the relations between the girl and the young man who may have been thought in any measure responsible for her death, any further than the apparently ingenuous and straightforward statements of Harris and the questions at second hand from the 'parents of the girl. But the parents have not considered it best to conceal further facts which may be considered by the authorities as having a serious bearing upon motives and circumstances prior and possibly leading to the death of the girl. vaninge of Cambridge was, hower, but transitory. At the Doves the steady, never-flagging Oxford stroke had sent the light blues once more slightly to the stern. Again the Cantabs put on their nervy spurt with such success that when the oil mills were reached the boats were once more side by side. In front of Chiswick the grand struggle commenced, and at the river bend Oxford was leading by a few feet. Here Cambridge, which had had the rough water, swept into a bit of smooth water, and so gallantly exhausted its possibilities that just beyond Thorny Creeft their boat, was for a third time a quarter length in advance. At Barnes Bridge the current of the stream favored their boat, Oxford jumped ahead a half length and passed through the center arch amid the tumultuous cheers of the crowd on the bridge and shore. Time 18:16.

A GRAND FINIAR.

A GRAND FISHER.

From here to the finish Oxford had much the best position, and almost succeeded in getting clear of her stout-hearted rival. The rowing of both crews was now something superb. The men were now something superb. The men were swinging their oars with grace and precision and without the slightest indication of exhaustion. It was evident that victory would come to the crew which should make the last and successful spurt. When the boats entered the quarter of a mile excitement jumped to fever heat. The finish work was something magnificent, but Oxford had its finger tips on victory when the boats blew around the bend and to the finish at the ship at Mortlake, the Oxfords were a quarter of a length ahead, and Cambridge rowing manfaily and pluckily to the end of one of the grandest races had for years. Time, 22 minutes. Time, 22 minutes.

The race is generally conceded to have been a most interesting and exciting one, and the twenty-fifth victory for Oxford is looked upon as being, if not among the most brilliant of the University's triumphs, certainly entitled to honorable mention furthe building tenacity with which victor and vanuulshed alike worked their way through rough water and opposing winds to the finish of a most successful contest.

quimbo. Several trains which were carrying troops from Serna were ared upon by the Esmeralda. Although no damage is reported as the result, it is said the soldiers were thrown into the wildest confusion and many dramatic scenes were enacted. Part of the revolutionary forces which took Pisagua are marching on to Iquique with a Jarge number of mutineers from the nitrate fields, and it is more than probable that a bloody conflict will occur in these fields, as the Government will try to dislodge the rebels.

Iquique, which was threatened by starvation, has been somewhat relieved by supplies from the Imperial, which stopped at Putillos, near Iquique, and landed 750 men and 200 rifles and the 1,000,000 cartridges she had on board, as well as all the flour and provisions she had.

beard, as well as all the flour and provisions she had.

The steamer Biobio, 800 tons of coal on board, for the rebel squadron was captured by the Government forces. This occurrence and the defeat of the rebels at Toluca have caused a aort of "ern of good feeling" in Government circles, but the revolutionists say that their victories, as they are termed, are very insignificant affairs.

By far the most important work being undertaken at present is the fortification of Valparaiso by the Government, for it is at that city that the greatest interests of both parties are centered. One of the most severe disappointments that Balmaceda has met with is the steady determination of Gen. Baquedano to have nothing to do with Balmaceda's government. From the beginning of the present trouble Gen. Baquedano has been doing splendid work for the revolutionists. Baquedano is by far the ablest man in the army and his fine military bearing and gentlemanly demeanor have gained for him the respect and love of his soldiers.

Valparaiso with 4,000 rifles for the Government has been captured by the revolutionists.

NEUTRAL GROUND.

The Island of Cuadros has been declared neutral ground by the revolutionists and 3,000 men, women and children have gone there for protection. However, it seems that even on neutral ground the people are not safe from Baimaceda's spies, for a few days ago a spy went to the island from Valparaiso and made several attempts to emilst men in the Government cause. The spy, whose name was Toro, approached several men, who refused point blank to have anything to do with him or his plans. Toro assassinated three men and one woman who threatened to denounce him, Toro was detected by a revolutionary officer who took him on board the Blanco to be shot as a spy, but the sailors wanted to string him up to the mast and finally he was removed to a transport and shot.

On the 2d inst. there was a financial panic at Valparaiso. A rumor was started that the Government was about to close the Valparaiso and the national hanks. This rumor spread rapidly and soon there was a long line of depositors at the doors of each bank is numering for their money. The run was a most disastrous one, and it will be many months before confidence will be restored in these banks.

At Canques there are 10,000 more who are to be armed with rifles that have a range of $,000 meters. These rifles cost $50 each.

The tidings from Valparaiso are becoming more ominous every hour, and it is eaid that the beautiful town is liable to fall at any time.

WHERE DID YOU GET THAT HAT!

That Is What the Court Will Want to Learn From Joseph Hart.

When Mr. S. J. Flaher, the real estate agent at 714 Chestnut street, went home on last Wednesday evening he, for the first time in many months, wore a slouch hat. Between 7 and 8 o'clock on that evening a sneak-thief had entered his office while he was engaged in the rear of the apartment and had stolen from his desk a glossy slik tile which he had made to order less than a week before. Last night detectives Frees and Fitzernild recovered the hat at a down-have to consult his attorney before giving an answer. He consulted his attorney, and when he was prepared to answer he said that by the advice of his counsel he had decided to place all the independents under the heading "Nominated by Electors."

The Independents foresaw in this the possibility of mixing them up with all sorts of people who might for that purpose be put forward in order to cause confusion at the polls. They believed that the Australian law gave them the right to a separate heading hem the right to a separate heading and they meant to get it if they ould. They proposed to Mr. Carlisle who seemed very much inclined to act with bsolute impartiality, to submit the case to a court and have the law interpreted. Mr. Carlisle said that he would be pleased with such a course and in order to facilitate a decision he would agree to answer the writ promptly and he would not appeal from the decision if it was adverse. The writ of mandamus was therefore applied for on Tuesday and if it was adverse. The writ of mandamus was therefore applied for on Tuesday and made returnable on Thursday. Mr. Carlisle responded promptly and the case was argued on Thursday morning. Then Mr. Finkelnburg, who represented the Independent's, simply argued that one section of the law gave the Independents authority to specify the party or principle that they represented on their certificate of nomination and another section said that the candidates of a party should be grouped together under a heading disclosing the party or principle specified in the certificate of nomination. Mr. Marshall, who represented the Recorder, recognized these sections, but held that they

Judge Withrow's decision, however, is a writ of mandamus directing the Recorder to group the candidates on the ballot under the heading: "Independent Municipal Ticket."

Among other things said in connection with their report is that Gen. Noble has given Maj. Eugene Weigel of census fame a fat berth in the Interior Department to have him act as an emissary between the Administration and Filley, who still represents Missouri in the National Committee and holds the chairmanship of the State organization. Mr. Filley was seen at his residence to-day and asked if any steps had been taken in this direction. He replied emphatically that the report was "pure rot." The idea that Weigel had been given an office to get his aid in pulling him in line caused "de cle man" to shudder and say "Ugh!" He added, however, that Weigel and himself had been on good terms. Concerning President Harrison's plans he expressed the opinion that he would be before the hext convention. He did not feel disposed to say just what chance he would have of getting a renomination, but said the President did live well up to the platform adopted at the convention which made him the nominee of his party. He had also seen the published report that Blaine would enter into an alliance to give President Harrison a renomination, but did not care to discuss it. Switching from national to local palitics, the reporter asked him if it was true that he had been ignored by the Republican managers. "If you refer to the invitation sent out to attend a conference, I will answer in the affirmative. I did not get any invitation and I am sure I It." "What has been done towards it?"

"Gov. Northern has already sent out an invitation for representative men of the State to meet in Atlanta and formulate a programme for the World's Fair. You see the constitution of Georgia does not permit appropriations to be made for fairs and consequently the money will have to be raised by private subscription. The Governor is in earnest and wants to see the State well represented at the Fair. And not only the Governor, but the citizens are anxious to show what a great and progressive State Georgia is. The private subscriptions will be large, and will insure a better exhibit than those States who can make legislative appropriations."

Last night's meeting in New York.

New York, March 21.—A meeting of 5,000 Italians was held last night at Cooper Hall. The excitement was at the highest tension all the time and some very bloodthirsty speeches were made. The crowd outside, which could not get into the hall, broke down the doors, but a squad of 150 police soon had tham in order. Resolutions condemning the lynching and asking immediate reparation were sent to the President and to Italy.

PROPOSED INVASION.

OTTAWA, Ontario, March 21.—Antonio Scapelli, an Italian contractor, who does a great deal in the way of importing Italian labor, was seen to-day and spoke of a letter he had received from Pennsylvania, His correspondent lays out a pretty plan, and proposes that an army of 14,000 men be organized to make a descent apon New Orleans and avenge the deaths of the Sicilians. The correspondent also states that the Italian Government will furnish 14,000 stands of arms.

WHAT SENATOR ALLISON SAID.

DUBUQUE, Io., March 21.—While in New Orleans a few days ago Senator Allison was reported as having strongly denounced the Italian lynching there and saying that the evidence brought on the trial was not strong enough to convict them. Senator Allison has reached his home in this city. He denies the truth of the statements attributed to him, and says that so far as he could learn all but two of the shaughtered Italians were known to be guilty. He says the United States cannot be held liable for indemnity.

No wheasiness was felt at the time as the child was in the habit of visiting the neighbors at will and went up in the town whenever she wanted to. As the evening went by and she did not make her appearance, her mother and father began to be uneasy about her and search was at once begun.

The entire community has been searching ever since for her. The town has been looked over and for miles along the railroad track, gullies and woods around the town and everything possible done to find her, but as yet without avail. The little girl is nearly 5 years old, has light hair and eyes between a biue and a gray. She is very bright in mainier and speech and is a great favorite in kingsland.

The belief is very general in the city that the child has been kidnaped. No other theory seems tenable. Some very rough characters have been hanging about the town the past few days, and it is thought the little one has been carried off in the hope that a reward may be effered for her return.

Perrien two days ago answered what he thought was a call from a sick friend, and got into a coupe with the messenger. The next morning at an early hour his nephew got an order by messenger telling him to secure $30,000 by means of checks and notes accompanying the order and to have the money at a certain place the next day. Mr. Perrien's note stated that it was an embarrassing "girl case" which could not bear the light of publicity. At $200 yesterday Mr. Perrien entered the millinery store of his niece on Gratiot street, two miles from his home. He was dazed and very much mussed up.

PERRIEN'S STORY.

Perrien told the following story: "As soon as I got into the coupe it was driven in the direction of my friend's residence, but went by. I should have attempted to get out, but the coupe was driven too fast. At the corner of Gratiot and Staubin avenue the coupe stopped for an instant and a man entered the other side with his face concealed by a half mask and wi' a revolver in his hand. They threatened to shoot if I made any outery, and I was silent. Hardly had they got in when they produced a big sack and drew it down over my head to my waist, and I was driven a half hour, and only know that the carriage turned several times. At length the carriage turned several times at table, where I was commanded to write at their dictation, and I wrote the letters and checks sent to Albert. They the took me to a room and one of them sat down while I went to bed, as they ordered. I must have gone to sleep after a time, but the man was still there sat down while I went to bed, as they ordered.

I must have gone to sleep after a time, but the man was still there when I went to sleep, and another man was there this morning. They brought my meals, but did not leave me alone at any time. This afternoon two men came, into the room and joined the one who had been watching me, but they were all masked and seemed greatly disturbed about something, and held whispered been watching me, but they were all masked and seemed greatly disturbed about something, and held whispered consultations, all the time keeping their revolvers prominently displayed. Something appeared to make them very mad, and they discussed a matter of interest. I was given my supper, and shortly after nightfall two of the men commanded me to prepare to move. I was again blindfolded, and I heard a carriage drive up to the door. I was hustled into it, and with a man on each side of me started. I knew not where. After a ride of a few minutes one of the captors said: 'If the—papers had not made such a stink about this we would have been all right,' and the carriage was stopped and I was thrown out on the ground and the carriage driven off, but I tore the bandage off my eyes and saw the same man on the seat that drove me away. I learned that I was at the corner of Myrtle and Thirteenth streets, clear across the city from my home, and I took a car. Yes, I was treated nicely, and am glad that the matter was made public."

Perrien is still very lil from his scare, and a doctor is in attendance.

The residents of Michigan avenue are loud in their denunciation of the manner in which the city allows the ambulance wagon containing small-pox patients to be driven down that thoroughfare to the county road, thence to the Quarantine. Considerable excitement prevaled yesterday along the thickly populated avenue. An ambulance was sighted, bearing down the avenue toward the Quarantine. Word passed along the line that "Here comes the small-pox wagon." Excited mothers ran out into the street and hurriedly sent the children into the house to remain there until the wagon had gone past. So far there has been no small spox reported from this locality.

Passage of the Justice-of-the-Peace Act in the Assembly.

A telegram was received this afternoon announcing the passage of the Devoy Justice-of-the-Peace bill in the Legislature. The bill now goses to the Governor. This act divides the city into nine districts and provides for a Justice and constable for each one. Each Justice and constable for each one. Each Justice is to receive a salary of $1,500 per year, and the constables are to be paid something like $100 a month out of the fees. The balance of the fees are to be paid into the treasury. The bill also extends the jurisdiction of the justices so that actions for larger amounts than the present limit can be tried before them. The bill originally specified that none but attorneys were eligible for such offices, but this section was killed with an amendment. The act is to take effect when the terms of the present justices expire. the Assembly.

The introduction of the bill was in line with the recommendation of Gov. Fifer. The passage of such a measure will cut in on Auditor Pavey's income and official importance to a considerable extent.

in the Treasury.

New York, March 21.—Edward O. Leech, the Director of the Mint, visited New York yesterday, and when recognized down town an impression got abroad that part of his business in New York was to ascertain the views of bankers as to the decision of the Government to withhold gold bars for export; but he told a reporter, who talked with him in the evening, that he came from Washington only on Assay Office business.

"I did not come with any definite purpose to ask the views of bankers on the gold bar subject at all," he said, "but being here, I incidentally met bankers and business men with whom I am personally acquainted, am satisfied that the gold bar policy is a good one, and that it will be commended by the people of the country and by bankers and business men generally."

"With whom did you converse about it?" asked the reporter."

"With all the leading bank presidents. The views of leading merchants and bankers in regard to the policy of the adminstration in declining to furnish shippers of gold with the fine gold bars for shipment abroad I astertained incidentally, and I have found that the sentiment is universally that the Government acted wisely in this decision."

In reply to other inquiries put by the reporter, Mr. Leech said; "This proposition to decline to exchange gold bars for gold coin has been a favorite project of mine for some time, indeed, ever since I have been director of the mint. I found on the statute books a law enacted in 1882, which authorized the superintendents of the mints to sell gold bars in exchange for gold coin of equal value.

"Late Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Win-

"Late Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Windom, and myself were disposed to hold that this law intended to give the department discretion, but upon submitting the matter to the Attorney-General he held that the statute was mandatory, and that we could not decline to exchange gold bars for gold coin, nor could we make any charge for such exchange. The result was that the Treasury Department was utterly helpless in the matter of gold shipments. Upon the recommendation of the late Secretary and myself Congress amended the law at its last session by makhig the exchange discretionary with the Secretary, and allowing the imposition of a charge equal to the cost of manufacturing the bars. The day after Congress adjourned $600,000 in gold bars were requisted for export, and, after consultation with the new Secretary, it was decided to impose a charge of 4 cents per $100 in value, equivalent to $240 on the amount of bars asked for. We found that the shippers paid this charge and that the shipment was made. On last Tuesday, I was notified by the Superintendent of the Assay Office in New York that $1,000,000 were wanted in gold bars for shipment. Exchange at that date was not a genuine exchange movement; that is, that it was more profitable to buy exchange on London than to bodily ship gold at that rate of exchange. It was what is known as an arbitrage movement, and upon my recommendation and with the concurrence of the administration, the Secretary decided to exercise the alternative allowed by the change in the law, and the Treasury Department declined to furnish gold bars in exchange for gold coin for shipment.

ment declined to furnish gold bars in exchange for gold coin for shipment.

"The views of the department are simply these: That it is undesirable and against public policy for the Government to furnish gold in its most convenient form at a seaboard port to shippers of gold, and we proposed to exercise the same discrimination that has been exercised by European countries in regard to the export of gold—that is, we do not propose to facilitate it. Shippers can send coin or private bars, but we hold that it is not the duty of the Government, nor is it good public policy to furnish them with that it is not the duty of the covernment, nor is it good public policy to furnish them with fine bars, of proved fineness and full weight, for shipment. As a matter of fact it is not as profitable to ship coln as bars. Coin is not always of full standard fineness, is frequently abraded and naturally loses is frequently abrated and laterally abraba by abrasion in transition. Besides, it has to be melted on the other side of the water and as a consequence the results to shippers are not so satisfactory in the case of coin as of bars, which are always of full weight and bars, which are always of full weight and are received readily by foreign banks at their stamped weight and fineness. This policy is exercised now, not because of any change in the monetary situation of the United States, not because there is any deficiency in the gold supply or any distrust that there may be any demand for gold, but solely because the law is now for the first time operative which permits us to exercise this discretion. As a matter of fact, there is a superabundance of gold in the Treasury of the United States, the amount at the present time being, as nearly as my memory serves me, about $500,000,000 of which over $150,000.000 is 'free gold,' that is, gold not held in trust for any purpose, but available for the redemption of the non-interest bearing indebtedness of the United States—that is, the legal tender notes and Treasury notes.

FLENTY OF FREE GOLD.

PLENTY OF PREE GOLD. "There has been no time recently when there has been more free gold in the Treasury that at the present time, and this change of policy upon the part of the administration has no connection whatever with the question of the upon the part of the administration has no connection whatever with the question of the ability of the Government or the readiness of the Government to redeem legal tender notes in gold upon demand of the holder. The Trensury stands ready at any moment to redeem any indebtedness of the Government legally payable in coin of standard value, in gold, upon demand. This policy is exercised solely for the benefit of the country, in that, as stated, it is not considered good policy to furnish shippers of gold with bars of proved weight and fineness, which is the most convenient and profitable form of gold for shipment, especially at a time when the rate of exchange does not warrant such shipments,"

Mr. Leech will return to Washington today. An attempt was made yesterday to create the idea that the Sub-Treasury was not paying gold on the new treasury notes, payable in "coin," when gold was asked for. Assistant Treasurer Roberts spoiled the attempt, which evidently had a speculative origin, by explaining that the Sub-Treasury had always paid out gold when asked for on the old greenbacks and the new treasury notes.

THE INGREASE OF COIN.

New York, March 21.—The production o gold in the United States according to the official estimate of the Government mint was $27,000,800 in 1889, and according to the estimate of Mr. Valentine of Wells, Fargo & Co., the production in 1899 was $41,798,561 with a total for the two years of $24,000,000. Besides this not less than $1,000,000 of foreign gold coin has been brought into the country by foreign immisgrants which has not been taken into any of the official statistics of imports. So that $65,000,000 of gold has been added to the supply in two years. In the twelve months to Jan. $1,1890, the total net exports of gold in excess of imports were $37,784,886, and in the year to Jan. $1,1891, the total net exports of gold in excess of imports were only $3,749,200; the total net exports for the two years being $41,584,006. From these figures it will be seen that unless the official statistics of the Government are not entirely worthless, there has been an increase of gold in the form of buillion or coin to the approximate amount of $22,500,000 in the United States in the last two years.

In view of the above increase of the stock of gold in the country it is difficult, says an official review, to account for the nervouscess with which the export of a little gold mow is regarded. This is the more remarkable because the net exports of gold for a year past have been exceptionally small, not one half as much as in the preceding twelve months. In the ten months up to Jan. 81, 1881, and the selling of American stocks by European holders, the total net exports of gold over imports of gold that went out any time in 1880 was $10,666,978 in July, and the total exports of the ten months to Jan. 81, 1881, were only $15,004,187, against which there were $10,782,033 of imports. Estimating the gold exports of the whole country since Jan. 81, by those from the port of New York the total amount for the two months up to next Saturday cannot exceed $10,000,000, which him in the evening, that he came from Washington only on Assay Office business.

THE MILLINGTON MURDER.

Expert Testimony Introduced by the Pros-DENVER, Colo., March 21.-The prosecution in the Millington case met with bitter opposi tion when they tried to introduce Dr. Haine of Chicago, an expert who examined severa portions of the body looking for poisons. The defense objected because they had not been present at the examination and because the body had remained for forty-eight hours in an unoccupied house where it might have mitted and Dr. Haines took the stand. He testified that in four ounces of the thigh he tound one fifth of a grain of arsenic. He then took four ounces of the hip and found one-twentieth of a grain. In the next four ounces of the thigh he found one-eightieth of a grain. He then examined the ribs, removed the fiesh, scraped and boiled the bones and then found a thousandth part of a grain. On cross-examination part of a grain.
On cross-examination Dr. Haines said that he found traces of arsenic in the embalming fluid. The fluid also contained sulphate of zinc, which contained arsenic. It was injected in the femoral artery, and that is where he got his best results.

THE "BLACK PRINCE."

Incidents in the Career of the Late J. P.
Johnson Howard.

New York, March 21.—J. P. Johnson Howard, best known as the "Black Prince," the formerly wealthy colored man, who was killed by a fall in the Auburn State prison Thursday, was a prominent figure in colored circles in Brooklyn for several years. He inherited a large fortune from his father. He was born in the alley known as Chandel street, near the Romain Catholic Cathedral, in 1888. His father dealt in real estate, coal and wood, and was a tailor and did scouring and dyeing. He decided to make his son a gentleman, and sent him to Oberlin College, where he was graduated after two years of study. The youth then went to sea and was cabin boy and afterward steward. He spent some time in China and Japan. After his return he had a restaurant in New York. In the war he was a steward in the navy. At one time he studied law, but falled to gain admission to the bar. He married about ten years ago, and after his father's death in 1888 he got possession of about $150,000. He then proceeded to live as a mabob. He had a brown stone house and plenty of servants. He was made commander of Wm. Lloyd Garrison Post, G. A. R., and was connected with many social or other organizations. At one time he was active in politics. He put a fine altar in Zion African Methodist Episcopal Church, where his father had attended. In five years he had managed to spend nearly all his fortune, and he became mixed up in straw ball proceedings in New York and was convicted of perjury and sent to 8 state prison for seven years. He was steward of the prison at the time of his death.

From Torturing Skin Diseases

When a single application of the Cuticura Remedies will, in the great majority of cases, instantly relieve the most agonizing of itching, burning, scaly, crusted, pimply, and blotchy skin and scalp diseases, and point to a permanent and economical (because so speedy) cure, when the best physicians and all other remedies fail? Cuticura Remedies are the greatest skin cures, blood purifiers, and humor remedies of modern times, are absolutely pure and agreeable to the most sensitive, and may be used by the youngest and most delicate with perfect success.

the great skin cure, instantly allays the most intense itching, burning, and inflammation, permits rest and sleep, speedily heals the skin, and restores the hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite skin beautifier, is indispensable in cleansing diseased surfaces. CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood and Skin Purifier and greatest of Humor Remedies, cleanses the blood of all impurities and poisonous elements, and thus removes the cause. Hence the Cuticura Remedies cure every disease and humor of the skin, scalp, and blood, with loss of hair, from infancy to age, from pimples to scrofula.

ALL ABOUT THE BLOOD, SKIN, SCALF, AND HAIR "mailed free to any address, 64 pages, 300 Diseases, 50 Illustrations, and 100 Testimonials. A book of priceless value to every sufferer.

WHAT THE DOCTOR SAYS:

A PROMINENT NEW YORK PHY-SICIAN GIVES THIS ADVICE FOR THE CURE OF MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM:

"Be regular in your habits, eat and drink only what you need. If the intestinal action is sluggish take a course of cathartics or some form of diuretic water to carry off the wastes of the body through the kidneys. Have the painful muscles fervently, using some soothing lo-tion. I like POND'S EXTRACT for such conditions, and it will promptly take out the soreness."

WHAT THE PATIENT SAYS: "My wife has been afflicted with the rheumatism for the past five weeks, and after using every known liniment, your POND'S EXTRACT came and we rejoice to say it is helping her very much."

THE THREE TICKETS.

If the Democrats of the Eighth District had not rebelled against the nomination for Congress made for them by the Mayor' nachine last fall they would have been represented in the next Congress by a Re-The same men who were so conspicuo in the crooked work done to prevent the re-election of Hon. JOHN J. O'NEILL to Congress and to turn the district ever to the Republicans, are now posing as very strong party men and calling on Demo rate to vote for a Democratic Counci licket "in harmony with the Mayor." If their slate had not been put through by a so-called Democratic convention, packed just as they packed the O'Malley Convention in the Eighth District, these men would have knifed the ticket and worked nore or less openly for their friends on the Republican Council ticket, As it is, only the election returns will show how many of their own nominees were put on for trading purposes, and how many of the Republican nominees will be elected by the secret work of the Mayor's gang. These fellows are as independent of party ties and have as much contempt for party alleriance when on a spoils hunt, as any honest Democrat or Republican can be when intent on protecting the city from the spoils machine. When Republican bosses of the Pohlman sort and Democratic bosses of the Butler and O'Meara sort jointly arrange tickets for both parties, and help each other put them through alleged primaries and party conventions, party sentiment is considered only as an instrument to be used, and there is no thought of advancing any real party interest. The voter who expects to do so by supporting their tickets must be a very green tyro in city affairs.

A Council indorsed and supported b none of the bosses is needed as a check upon ring work and to prevent the conversion of our city government into a huge spoils machine. The election of the Independent Municipal ticket over both the party tickets is the only thing that will give us a Council independent of the Executive Department, and free to rescue the Mayor's office from the greediest "combine" of bosses that ever threatened St.

Louis.

THE Treasury Department's Bureau of Statistics has refuted and utterly effaced the claim that the tariff tax is paid by foreigners. It has published a table showing the foreign cost of our imports and the duty paid thereon, from which it appears that on window glass, alcohol, liquors, tobacco and many other largely imported articles the tariff tax greatly exceeds the amounts paid to the foreigners from whom we buy the goods. They certainly would not sell us $1,402,796 worth of window glass and then give us the $1,538,228 in gold necessary to enable us to get the glass through our Custom-house. They would save $136,000 by making somebody else a present of the glass. The foreigners who. according to these tables, sell us $2,000,000 worth of liquors certainly do not give us the $3,000,000 in gold with which we pay the duty on those liquors. If they did able to save a cool million by giving them away to others instead of selling them to us on those terms.

THE WOODHULL sisters, who have been fortunate enough to secure English husbands with large fortunes and thus are enabled to spread their peculiar social doctrines from advantageous positions, are reported to be contemplating a raid upon the directors of the World's Fair with a view of obtaining permission to establish a stirpicultural exhibit. As stirpiculture in its logical development includes free love, it is difficult to imagine a stirpicultural exhibit which will not be a highly immoral show. The World's Fair should examine the proposal of Lady Cook and Mrs. MARTIN with exceeding care from the standpoint of respectable people who have regard for law and decency before accepting it.

In Maine, as in Pennsylvania, both parties promised the people the Australian ballot reform. But, after securing a large majority in the Maine Legislature, the Republicans have again defeated the bill by casting 75 votes against it, only 81 of them roting with 40 Democrats for it. The leaders opposed it on the ground that with such a law in force they could no longer carry the State for their party. Probably the same reason has kept the Pennsylvania Republicans from redeeming their platform pledge. They have had control of the Legislature at Harrisburg for two months and a half, and have not yet taken a single the Federal elections bill will not down. step towards enacting the Australian ballot > Trany's navy is a formidable one, but it is the least of the dangers to which we are exposed by such affairs as the New Orleans outbreak. Internal demoralization and anarchy are far more hurtful to us than all the navies in the world could possibly be. They could ravage only a few miles of coast. One Mayor who openly approves, connives at and encourages mob murders can do more damage in one day than all of Italy's heavily armored vessels, which are notori-ously unable to carry coal enough to bring them over the Atlantic.

General WANAMAKER makes it out, th

credit upon the postal authorities. It should never have been allowed to fall into such a demoralized condition. It is to be hoped, however, that the reform of the service will not be used as a cover by designing politicians to reorganize the force on a Republican campaign basis.

THE silly remarks of a few light-heade Italians about the ability of Italy's navy to demolish the coast cities of this country is being made the basis of an attempt to work up another scare in the interest of extravagant naval appropriations. The King of Italy is too smart to trust one of his monster scare iron-clads that far from me, and if he should do it the com mander of the vessel would probably have to hire an American tug to keep her from drifting ashore for want of coal. It is not improbable that he would need the service of the life-saving corps to keep his men from drowning, Negroes at the World's Fair.

From the New York WOBLD. The demand made by negroes of promi-nence that the President shall "recognise" their race by appointing a negro commis-sioner to see to the due exhibition of negro achievements at the World's Fair is som wise as a suggestion tending to the interes ess of the Fair.

There is scarcely anything of all that we have to exhibit which is more interesting or more instructively significant than would be the due and adequate illustration of the prog ress made by the negroes in intelligence, morality, education and the capacity of achievement during the quarter of a century since their release from slavery.

Considering all the adverse conditions created by many colors.

ited by unavoidable circumstances and in ensified by political folly and worse, the record of negro advances in that brief period may fairly be reckoned among the marvels of history and its proper exhibition at Chicago must attract a degree of thoughtful attention and awaken a sympathetic interest beyond what is probable in the case of any other

We have nothing to show at Chicago which s better worth showing and seeing than the visible Illustration of negro progress-nothing which will reflect greater credit upon our institutions or give us better founded hope

Richard Ellis, colored, aged 18 years, and his sister, Hannah Ellis, aged 28, fought over some trivial matter about 7 o'clock last night at their home in the rear of 1019 Franklin av-enue. Richard was getting the worst of the encounter, and used a pocket knife, cutting his sister on the left side of the head. He was arrested soon after by Officers Gaffney and O'Brien of the Third District. The wom-

A Girl Run Over.

Hattle Brown, a 14-year-old colored girl, living with her parents in the rear of 1707 Franklin avenue, was knocked down by the horses attached to a butcher wagon while crossing Franklin avenue at Seventeenth street about 5:20 o'clock last night. The wheels of the vehicle passed over her body, inflicting serious internal injuries. The driver, Louis Archer, was arrested by Officer Meehan of the Third District and will be held to await the result of the girl's injuries.

Found Unconscious.

Shortly after 2 o'clock this morning Officer Krueger of the Central District found Emile Satterle unconscious on the sidewalk on Chouteau avenue between Tenth and Eleventh. When conveyed to the Dispensary in an ambulance, the man was found to be bleeding from a severe scalp wound on the back of his head. Satterle is a single man, 46 years old and lives on Broadway near Arsenal street. He was detained at the Four Courts

He found it to be a genuine case of small-pox. The patient was John Scharpf, a tailor 29 years of age living at No. 1235 North Thirteenth street. This is an entirely new locality and the doctors to-day were completely at loss to account for the presence of the disease there. Dr. Priest said: "I have not yet been able to trace the origin of this case, but I am certain that the man caught it from some one in the city, as he has not been out of town for a long time. "There is one thing I want to say to the doctors and druggists in St. Louis and the only way I can reach them all is through the papers: I advise them most seriously that it is a part of their duty to supply themselves with fresh vaccine, so that people can be vaccinated immediately. The Department is supplying large quantities to the doctors, but we cannot supply it all. There are farms at Webster, Mo., and Columbia, Mo., where they can get all the fresh vaccine they need, and I strongly urge them to do so at this time. Another thing: Everybody who has not been vaccinated for same time should attend to the matter at once. It is just as easy to do so now as at any time and certainly much safer than to walt. Yesterday we sent doctors down to the Workhouse and vaccinated every prisoner in it, house and vaccinated every prisoner in it, there being some three hundred and sixty of

tickets, St. George (opposite New York) to Tottenville, taken up on the train reaching Tottenville at 8:30 p. m., Feb. 2., has been taken as conclusive euidence that Ruttinger arrived at Tottenville (possibly accompanied 8:30 d'clock Feb. 2. Some doubt has been thrown upon that by the statement of Con-ductor Hayes of the Rapid Transit Railway, nt of Con-

Totenville at 10:45 p. m. Feb. 2.

Conductor Hayes says:

"I was struck by the resemblance which two of my passengers bore to the dead man Ruttinger, and his companion Wright, when I read the reports of the murder in the papers. But they were accompanied by a third man. I cannot say positively that it was the date on which Ruttinger is thought to have passed on the road to Tottenville. It may have been a day later or earlier. The big man on the train was such an athletic fellow that I remarked that he was another John L. Sullivan.

Sallivan.

"There were two other men with him, one of whom answered the description of the little man Wright. The other man was a small man, and I thought he was somewhat older than the others, in fact an old man. They got on the train at St. George and appeared to be fast friends, as they were together and deported themselves as friends who are well acquainted with each other. One of them got off at Riehmond Valley and the other two kept on to Tottenville, where they alighted. Mine was the train which left St. George at 10.05 p. m. after connecting with the ferry boat from New Tork, which left that city at 5:40."

Who got off at RICHMOND VALLET?

This train is No. 26 on the schedule and leaves St. George at 10:05 and arrives at Tottenville at 10:45. The distance between Richmond Valley and Tottenville is half a mile, and officials of the road say that a fair pedestrian can walk the distance easily in seven or steht minutes.

The Rapid Transit road is, as is well known, a small road whose regular passengers are residents and fishermen. The residents along the line are all known to the conductors and trainmen, and it is the usual thing for them to pass the time of day as they get on and off the trains. The fact that three men—strangers—passed on the road and attracted the attention of the conductor is not singular, taking these things into consideration, but it would have been more singular had they not been noted. But where did they go? They are not remembered as returning, and it is well known why Ruttinger did not return.

What business could a stranger have had which would compel him to get off at so late an hour at so insignificant a town as Richmond Valley? And with whom did he transact this business. If any he had? Surely that is a question which can easily be answered, if, indeed, the stranger did see any one. Strangers are not so pleaty in Richmond Valley but that the coming of one in the dead hour of midnight could pass without comment. Or did he pass on silently through the town and meet Ruttinger at Tottenville? The Rapid Transit road is, as is well known Conductor Hayes noticed the men particularly, and says he was struck with the athletic build of the black-haired man. He at first thought of speaking about the matter to the authorities, but did not do so. He was sure that one of them got off at Richmond Valley, while the other continued to the end of the route. They impressed him as strangers, because all the regular travelers are known to the conductors and trainmen. The circumstance carried no significance at the time, and he never mentioned the affair till he saw the story of the finding of the body of Ruttinger in the Arthur Kill. Then he mentioned the fact to one or two people.

All this hooks in with the story told District the control of the story told District the control of the story told District with the story told District the control of the story told District t HOOKS INTO A THEORY.

All this hooks in with the story told District Attorney Fitzgerald by an Englishman, who came over with Ruttinger and Wright. He said the big German treated the little En-glishman villianously and that the latter said he would throw Ruttinger overboard if he had some one to help him.

It is perfectly plain to persons who have

It is perfectly plain to persons who have collowed this case carefully that there has followed this case carefully that there has been a good deal of lying by the parties concerned. Wright, in America, gives it out that he is dependent upon Ruttinger for support and anxiously seeking employment so as to support himself. Ruttinger, on the other hand, represents himself as having plenty of money and being practically indifferent as whether he secures a position or not. Wright's relatives in Europe now tell a story the very reverse of this, saying he took $\frac{1}{2}$,000 with him to America and that it was Ruttinger who had little money. If the latter Buttinger who had little money. If the latter is the truth, Wright and Ruttinger must have had some object in creating a false impression. What was that object? Why should Ruttinger say that that he gave Wright $100 "when he saw him off for Boston" if Wright had $5,000?

PART OF RUTTINGER'S INSURANCE.

The Equitable Life Assurance Co., of New York wrote a policy for 90,000 marks on the life of Rightinger in Dresden, Germany, Nov. 16, 1890. The records of the company in New York show that Ruttinger gave his history to the Equitable Co. in Dresden. A. Wiedemann, as follows:

name of the period makes, the hamber application was received in the New York office on Dec. 8, 1890, and the policy was made out Dec. 18, 1890, and mailed to the general agent at Hamburg on Dec. 16, 1890. This would give about ten days for the passage of the letter from New York to Hamburg and about three or four days additional would be required for the policy to travel from Hamburg to Dresden.

required for the policy to travel from Hamburg to Dresden.

Manager Johnson of the Equitable company says this policy of 20,000 marks is evidently in the hands of either Ferdinand Ruttinger, Carl's brother, or Therese, his mother.

Singularly enough the date of Ruttinger's and Wright's departure for America almost coincides identically with the date of probable receipt of the big policy by Ruttinger's mother and brother.

Vall was released from custody late on the afternoon of Tuesday, March 16. Attorneys McDonald and Crews went into the Criminal Court on that day and made formal application for an early trial in the case. They gave their reason for such a request that Vall was languishing in prison and quoted the statute which specifies that in case of a mistrial the defendant should be given a new hearing within the succeeding term of court. In the face of this, with but a nominal docket for that day and the following days, Judge Normile calmiy announced that he would listen to arguments on the motion on the following Saturday. Mr. Mc.

Having given his word that the motion would be heard on the following Saturday, Judge Normile on the following Saturday, Judge Normile on the following Thursday adjourned court for the week in order that the court-room might be given unnecessary and expensive repairs. This, of course, was at the tax payers' expense, but the election was over.

On the following Mondasp Mr. McDonald and Mr. Vall appeared in court and demanded to know why they had not been given the hearing at the time promised. They learned the circumstances of the adjournment, and spoke to Olerk Hugh Pattison. Mr. Pattison informed tham that he would put the case on the law docket to day. This was done, and the docket was placed on Judge Normile's desk in order that he might obtain official notification of the setting of the case. Yesterday morning when the Jury in the Logan case had been dismissed and continuances announced in the other action on the docket, Judge Normile directed Deputy Sheriff Cullen to adjourn court until Monday.

"Your Honor, we have an important law docket for to morrow," interrupted Clerk Pattison, at the same time handing up the record of the motion set for hearing.

"Adjourn court, Mr. Sheriff; adjourn court until Monday morning."

It was done. Half an hour later Mr. McDonald was in the building and learned of the action which had been taken. He went up into the Criminal Court and looked long and anxiously for Judge Normile, who, however, was not to be found.

Dr. Chambers says that on Thursday morning the symptoms of paymonia appeared, and that the disease was developing when heart failure occurred. Mr. Barrett has suffered from heart disease for some years, and it was owing to the susceptibility of this organ that death occurred immediately.

LAWRENCE BARRETT'S CARBER.

Mr. Barrett was born of Irish parents in Paterson, N. J., on April 4, 1848. It has been said his family name was Brannigan, butghis has been denied. When 16 years old he went has been denied. When 16 years old he went to work in a dry goods store in Detroit, Mich., but soon deserted that place for a position in the company of the Metropolitan Opera-house of that city. His first speaking part was that of Murad in "The French Spy."

Barrett was not yet 19 when, in January, 1857, he made his first appearance in Naw York at the Chambers Street Theater, which had just been abandoned by Burton, supporting a novice, Mrs. McMahon, in the roles of Sir Thomas Clifford, the Stranger, Ingomar, Claude Melnotte, Lord Townsly, and Armand Duval. Claude Melnotte, Lord Townsly, and Armand Duval. He was too young for so heavy a task, of course, although he had been an actor four years, but his manner of performing it pleased Burton, who engaged him to play small parts at his new house, afterward called Winter Garden Theater. In the autumn of 1862-8, when Mr. Barrett returned to New York, after an absence of four years, he had risen fairly to the dignity of "leading man," and played important parts at Winter Garden, in the support of Edwin Booth, John S. Clarke, Mary Provost, Lucille Western, and Mrs. Bowers. In 1864, when, in association with Lewis Barter, he managed the old Varieties Theater in New Orleans, then under military government, he first acted Hamlet, Richelieu, and Eliot Grey, in Lester Wallack's romantic play called "Rosedale." He went to England for the first time in 1867, and after his return, in December of that He went to England for the first time in 1887, and after his return, in December of that year, journeyed by the sea route to San Francisco, where he appeared Feb. 18, 1869, at Maguire's Opera-house, as Hamlet. He first acted James Harebell in "The Man o' Airlie," by W. G. Wills (taken from the German of Karl von Holte), at Booth's, June 5, 1871. In December of that year Mr. Barrett undertook the management of the new Varieties Theater in New Orleans, with a five years' lease, remaining in New York, however, to act Cassius in Mr. Booth's revival of "Julius Cassar." He appeared in his own theater, beginning March 4, 1872, as vival of "Julius Cæsar." He appeared in his own theater, beginning March 4, 1872, as Hamlet, Raphael in "The Marble Heart," Alfred Evelyn in "Money," Richelleu, Shylock, Richard III., Dazzle in "London Assurance," Badger in "The Streets of New York," Cassius, Manuel in "The Romance of a Poor Young Man," Harebell, and Romeo. He did not personally control the Varieties Theater after that season. He first acted King Lear in New Orleans, Jan. 30, 1874. In the autumn of 1875 he was again seen at Booth's in Cassius, Lear and the title role in "Daniel Druce, Blacksmith," a do-seen at Booth's in Cassius, Lear and the title role in "Daniel Druce, Blacksmith," a domestic drama by W. S. Gilbert.

Mr. Barrett produced in Cincinnati, Oct. 11, 1887, "A Counterfeit Presentment," an original play by William Dean Howells; in Cleveland, Oct. 26, 1878, "Yorick's Love," an adaptation by Mr. Howells of a Spanish play by Estebados; in Chicago, Nov. 28, 1881, "Pendragon," a tragic play in verse, found on the Arthurian legends, by William Young; in Philadelphia, Sept. 11, 1882, "Francesca da Rimini," a tragic play in verse by George H. Boker, that had not been acted for nearly a quarter of a century. In the spring of 1894 he appeared at the Lyceum Theater, in London, After his return, the next autumn, he added to his repertory "A Blot in the 'Scutcheon," by Robert Browning, and "The King's Pleasure" (Gringoire), by Theodore de Banville. In the winter of 1885-6 he revived James Kenney's English version of Victor Hugo's "Hernani," and Mrs. Centilvre's comedy called "The Wonder," reduced to three acts, while he gave up a large cart of the ensuing season to Mary Mitford's livre's comedy called "The Wonder," reduced to three acts, while he gave up a large part of the ensuing season to Mary Mitford's tragedy of "Rienzi." He produced in Chicago, Oct. 9, 1889, "Ganelon," a four-act tragedy play in verse by William Young, the representations of which were interrupted by the actor's liness. "Guido Ferranti," a tragic play in five acts, written in verse, by Oscar Wilde, was produced by Mr. Barrett in New York, Jan. 26, 1891. In the autumn of 1896 Mr. Barrett became the manager of Mr. Booth's tours, and in the seasons of 1897-8, 1888-9, the two actors appeared in "Julius Cæsar," "Othello," "Hamlet" and other plays.

A ST. LOUIS BOY BECOMES FAMOUS. Theodore Bernays Spiering Attracts At-tention Abroad.

Theodore Bernays Spiering, whose violin playing when a little boy attracted a great leal of attention in this city, particularly at ceal of attention in this city, particularly at the concerts of the Philharmonic Quintette Club, has been studying for the last three years at the Berlin academy of Arts and is said to be making worderful progress under Prof. Joachim. Young Spiering recently played his master's G. sharp concerto with orchestra accompaniment to the Professor's entire satisfaction. He plays the first violin in a quartette with Paul Morgan, another American; Christopher Briggs, an Englishman; and Frans Essor, a German; and at a recent concert they played Schubert's quartette in G. sharp op. Si in a manner to wiff them the warmest praise from both Joachim and the directors of the concert. Young Spiering will probably remain in Berlin another year and then spend some months in Paris, after which he will return to America to locate in his native city.

ehe Retail Drug Business.

At a meeting of the druggists, wholesale and retail, held yesterday afternoon, it was decided to erganize the St. Louis Apothecaries' Association, for the purpose of keeping up the prices of patent medicines. The wholesale houses agreed to boycott the Antimonopoly Drug Store and Judge & Dolph's and all others which sell patent medicines below the schedule rates, and the meeting decided to employ a detective to keep watch of the retail druggists in the Association to see that they don't sell goods to the stores on the blacklist. The latter claim that they made 10 per cent on the patent medicines and that the "regulars" are not satisfied unless they make from 884 to 50 per cent.

W. F. Curtis' Scheme to Open a Color

Men's Club Opposed.

W. F. Curtis, colored, desires to gain possession of the premises at 3118 Lucas avenae, of which he is owner, for the purpose of turning the premises into a club house for colored men. Gec. N. Moore had possession of the premises when Curtis bought it, and notwithstanding the present owner's efforts to oust him, still has possession.

The people in the vicinity of the proposed club-house are strongly opposed to Curtis' scheme, and several of them are aiding Moore in retaining possession. The case comes up in Justice Sheehan's court this afternoon on a plea from Curtis that his rent is not being regularly paid. The case will be bitterly fought by both Moore and neighboring residents and about thirty witnesses have been summoned to testify. A jury will consider the merits of the evidence, and both factions will be represented by good legal talent.

The case was originally brought before Justice Spaulding's court, where it was called for trial several times, and finally a change of venue to Justice Sheehan was taken. Ourfis seems determined to carry his point, and if defeated will take the case to the District Court, as will also the opposition. A large number of leading colored people are said to be interested in the scheme, and demand that the property be turned over to those who own it. The people in the neighborhood think the location of the club-house where now planned would seriously injure the rental value of the would seriously injure the rental value of the property in the vicinity. If you want a good smoke, try them. Mer-antile Cigar Factory, 305 North Fourth street. DETECTIVES WERE WATCHING HIM.

Joseph Mueller Arrested for Carrying A warrant for petit larceny was sworn out at the Four Courts yesterday against Joseph Mueller. Detectives Connors and Schroeder of the Second District are respon-sible for the defendant's arrest, which was made under circumstances of the most pe-made under circumstance.

It is the old story of treachery after long service. For more than ten years Mueller had been in the employ of Joseph F. Schelbrink at the latter's brush factory, 1818 South Broadway. He was a married man, 63 years old and lived at Broadway and Marion street. For several months the foreman had noted the disappearance of brushes, bristles and other stock and kept a close watch on some of the new workmen, whom bristles and other stock and kept a close watch on some of the new workmen, whom he suspected of the thofts.

On last Wednesday morning one of the employes arrived at the factory before 5 o'clock. Going into the basement he came suddenly upon Mueller. The latter said something about not being able to sleep, and when he thought that his companion's back was turned tossed two packages of bristles, which he carried in his hands, behind a pile of barrels conveniently near. When Mr. Schelbrink arrived he was informed of the occurrence and reported the matter to Capt. and reported the matter to Capt. er at the Second District Police Station. He was advised to say nothing of what had appened and allow the bristles to remain where they had been thrown, behind the arrels. The next morning Detectives Conbarrels. The next morning Detectives Connors and Schroeder were concealed in the basement, but nothing unusual transpired. This morning they were again in hiding, and from their point of vantage were enabled to watch Mueller's every move. The old man put in an appearance a little before 6 o'clock, and carefully surveying the premises, removed the bristles from their place of concealment. No sooner had he left the building with his plunder than the detectives followed and placed him under arrest. The stolen property was valued der arrest. The stolen property was valued at only $4 and the warrant issued charges the prisoner with petit larceny. Mr. Schelbrink, however, is confident that within the past two or three years several hundred of his factory. The investigation is yet in progress in order to learn Mueller's method of disposing of his plunder.

Imbroglio—General Sporting News.

New York, March 21.—This spasm of virtue that has shaken the red mud of New Jersey down below the subsoil is the hardest stroke that racing has received in six years. When news of the death of the bills legalizing betting reached the city last night it caused a serious disturbance of the equilibrium of hundreds of staid turfmen. They were almost without exception amazed beyond measure, the Tribune says. They had expected the passage of the measure with a confidence born of well-invested funds. They believed that money would talk. They felt that it had to talk. They had never known a time in New Jersey when it did not talk. They were calm and serene accordingly, fearing no slip or accident. Their feeling is well illustrated by the following incident, adds the Tribune:

A reporter walked into the corridor of the St. James' Hotel at 9 o'clock and found the prince of starters, James F. Caldwell, in his accustomed corner.

"Hello" said the. "When are you coming

"Hello!" said he. "When are you comin over to the 'Gut' to see some racing?'
"Never," said the reporter. "The Tribune cannot afford to notice that track."
"Well," was the reply, "I guess I'll see you at the other track [meaning Elizabeth] when the blue birds nest again."
"When are you regist to part again."

"When are you going to nest again?"
"Why on the 10th of April, of course." "Sure. I have got $1,100 bet on it. We shall have racing there on the 10th."
"Then you have lost."
"Lost! You don't mean it! Ain't the bill

"Dead as a door nail. Legislature adjourned at 5 o'clock."
"Great lord! Then I have lost. Let me go over to Dels and tell Joe. I've lost $1,100.
Well, well, if it don't beat all!"

"I'm sorry. Why did you bet that way?"
"Why, I thought the bill was a certainty. I did not see how they could beat it. But it don't matter. It ain't quite a week's salary, so I guess I can stand it?"

don't matter. It ain't quite a week's salary, so I guess I can stand it."

Ex-Congressman W. L. Scott, who is a big stockholder in the Monmouth Park Association, said early in the day that there was no chance for the bills and when asked if there would be racing at Monmouth without them, said: "No there will be no racing at Monmouth this year."

But Mr. Scott he it known its lost the over

But Mr. Scott, be it known, is not the oracle of the Newmarket of America. Wait till Mr. Withers is heard from. He was not to be seen last night. It is believed in many usually seen last night. It is believed in many usually well-informed quarters that Guttenburg is mainly responsible for the defeat of the bills, but this is emphatically contradicted by a man closely identified with the track upon the hill. Said he:

"I know that Guttenburg has been ready with her nine votes to help the bill. I know that the same man has had charge of the interests of Monmouth and Guttenburg. There is no doubt that that the two tracks have been working together."

That is just what killed the bills. Guttenrepresented the race tracks in their efforts to secure legislation. A great deal of money was used to carry the measures, and that fact makes their defeat seem the more remarkable. Not less than $140,000 was subscribed for the campaign, and all for nothing. The supposition is that it was put where it was thought it would do the most good. Does any man know where that was? Doubted. No specific charges of bribery are made. That would be going a little too far. SEVERE BLOW TO THE TURF.

BASE BALL. Al Spalding is now engaged in indignantly denying that A. W. Thurman's resignation as Chairman of the Board of Control was secured chairman of the Board of Control was secured by the National League as a concession to the American Association, or that the League has endeavored to patch up a peace with the Association. Despite Mr. Spalding's statement, however, there is no question about Thurman being deposed to conciliate the Association, and as for the League wanting to make peace with the younger bodies there are numerous telegrams in possession of the Association people to prove that the older body is seeking a compromise. The Association, however, would be very foolish to compromise. They now have bright prospects in Boston, Philadelphia and Cincinnati, but if they compromise they will lose most of the players they have in those three cities and probably have to retire from Cincinnati altogether and take in some unprofitable city in its place. With four teams in Boston and Philadelphia they can do nothing. The League has everything to gain and nothing League has everything to gain and nothing to lose by a compromise and the Association has all to lose and nothing to gain. The younger body now has the upper hand in the fight and they should hold it.

PITTSBURG AND O'CONNOR. The National League is evidently well aware of the fact that the Association contracts with players are perfectly valid, despite the national agreement clause in them. This is shown in the action of the Pittsburg Club. It signed Jack O'Connor after he had contracted with the Association, and although he has violated his Pittsburg League contract and returned to the Association there will be no violated his Pittsburg League contract and returned to the Association there will be no attempt made to get him back. The reason given by the club is that they do not want him. Whether they want him or not they would endeavor to hold him to his contract if they could to punish him and to keep Columbus from using him. If they could prove his contract with Pittsburg is valid they could force him to pay back the $750 advance money which they declare they intend to make him surrender. The following from the Pittsburg Dispatch may be taken as official:

Whether or not that very fine specime Whether or not that very fine specimen of morality and honesty, Jack O'Connor, will ever return the money he obtained from the Pittsburg Club by promising and signing to play here may be conjectured, but it is certain that a man of Mr. O'Connor's fik will never play in the Pittsburg Club. This is no case of "sour grapes," because no effort at all will be made to hold him to his contract. The truth is the club is fortunate in having escaped such a character, judging from his public utterances and private telegrams from him. He certainly has not injured the local club, but he has greatly not injured the local club, but he has greatly injured his prospects, it may be, ruined them, in the base ball profession. There is no toleration for a man who obtains money under false pretenses and keeps it. O'Connor could have had his release from Pittsburg honorably any time he asked for it.

But the directors of the club mean to prose-cute him on the charge of obtaining $750 under cute him on the charge of obtaining $750 under false pretenses. What was the amount of advance money he received from the Pittsburg Club, and it will be well for Mr. Jack O'Connor if he gives it up as soon as possible. To obtain money under false pretenses is a criminal offense, and Mr. O'Connor and his advisers should not forget this because Jack can be "pinched" even in Columbus on the charge. He is a very foolish young man.

ROGERS' GAUZY EXPLANATION.

John I. Rogers of the Philadelphia League Club has been interviewed about the telegram sent by J. Palmer O'Neill to Capt.
Comiskey of the St. Louis club, stating that he was authorized to sign the latter at a big salary to captain and manage the Philadelphia club, and requesting him to also get Pitcher King of St. Louis to go with him. Mr. Rogers makes the following extremely week and this explanation.

"I never saw or heard of such a telegram until I read it in this morning's paper, nor was Mr. O'Neill authorized to send such a telegram. The matter arose out of a remark made by me in Chicago on Saturday, Feb. 21, just as I was about leaving the hotel for the train. I expressed a doubt as to Mr. Wright reconsidering his resignation as manager, which had been tendered to us the Monday previous. Mr. O'Neill then said: 'I am going to St. Louis to-night, and I am informed that neither Pitcher King nor Capt. Comiskey have signed for 1891. If so, I am going to secure Pitcher King, and I would advise you to engage Comiskey.' I replied that we tried to get Comiskey a year ago, but Yon der Ahe's figures were too high. As I left the hotel for the train, Mr. O'Neill said: "I will see Comiskey to morrow and wire you on Monday if he is free to sign, and his terms.'

"I paid no further attention to the matter. Had O'Neill wired me off that Monday about Comiskey I would have negotiated for him, but would have had Harry Wright as manager. but would have had Harry Wright as manager. He not sending me any word, I thought that Comiskey was surely engaged. Any inference from Mr. O'Neill's telegram reflecting in the least degree upon the sincerity of our often-expressed views regarding the inviolability of contracts, or upon our honest and sincere preference for Manager Wright as manager as long as he is able to fulfill the duties of that office, is unjust to us, in view of our well-known and consistent record on both subjects."

President Von der Ahe of the St. Louis Club left for Cincinnati last night. Before leaving he said that, owing to the bad condition of the grounds, the season would not open to-day, as intended, but on Sunday, with a game between the Hudsons and the Browns. Bill Gleason will umpire the game and both teams will appear in their new uniooth teams will appear in their new uni-orms.

Hugh McCormick of St. John, N. McCormick claims that he was out of condition on account of his long sea voyage and consequent want of training. Hagan, he says, is the fastest man he ever met, and may come to America next season.

McCormick will make one more attempt to regain the world's championship and then retire.

ferson and Charles Moore.

SEDALIA, Mo., March 20.—The execution of Thomas Williamson, set for to-day, has been postponed, pending a decision on the appeal to the Supreme Court.

Williamson's life has been a crimetainted one, and his career of wrong doing began in early manhsod. His record of lifetaking comprised at least four murders. The crime for which he is under sentence to pay the death penalty was a particularly atroclous one. Williamson was working on the farm of Jefferson Moore and his son Charles, a few miles from Sedalia. The three men lived alone together, there being no woman in the miles from Sedalia. The three men lived alone together, there being no woman in the household. In the latter part of May, 1890, friends of the Moores visited the farm and made the horrible discovery that both father and son had been murdered. An investigation established the fact that Williamson had committed the bloody dead. Young Moore was the first victim. An ax was the weapon used, and the murderer dug a hole by the roadside a few hundred yards from the house, in which he buried the body. A week later old Jefferson Moore was killed in his house by Williamson who butchered him with the same

The murderer dragged the body to the cellar and covered it with dirt which he had hauled from a field near by. After the killing Williamson circulated the report that he had bought the Moore farm and that he held a deed to all the land and stock. He showed a forged deed to one Becky Arnold, a simple minded girl, whom he had met at Salvation Army meetings in Sedalia and to whom he had proposed marriage. He also claimed that the Moores had gone to Illinois. Later he gave the forged deed to the Arnold girl. When the murders were discovered by the finding of the bodies, Williamson attempted suicide by swallowing a small dose of strychnine. He did not take enough of the poison, however, to accomplish his purpose and soon recovered and was ledged in jall. He was tried in the Pettis County Criminal Court in February, 1891, and convicted of the murder of the Moores, and victed of the murder of the Moor Judge Ryland sentenced him to be March 20. it was done in self-defense.

Previous to his going to live on the Moore farm, Williamson had lived on the Dudley farm, six miles from Sedalia, with his wife, whom he married soon after coming to Pettis County. In September or October, 1888, they left there, Williamson coming to Sedalia, where he eked out a precarious living, but the woman mysteriously disappeared. When Williamson was arrested for the Moore murder, search was made on the Dudley farm, and ever, was that Williamson murdered his wife.

Williamson, who is 51 years old, was born in Hopedale, Tasewell County, Ill. At the beginning of the late war, after committing a petty theft, for which he escaped punishment, he enlisted in the Union army. While in camp in Louisiana he attempted to kill a fellow soldier, and also attempted suicide. On his discharge from the service at the close of the war, he returned to Hopedale, Ill., where he led the life of a vagrant and worthless vagabond, only occasionally doing some honest work. He and two other men who were employed on the farm of an old German bachelor murdered the man and boldly took possession of the farm. They harvested the crop, hauled it off and sold it and also disposed of the personal effects. Williamson and his accomplice told the friends of the German farmer that he had gone East. The story was not believed, how-Williamson and his accomplice told the friends of the German farmer that he had gone East. The story was not believed, however, and the authorities made an investigation which developed the fact that the farmer had been murdered and his body buried in the cornfield. Williamson and his accomplices were arrested and tried. One of the latter turned State's evidence. Williamson was sentenced to be hanged but the Governor commuted the sentence to twenty-two years in the penitentiary. He served only seventeen years. When the murder of the old German was discovered, Williamson stated that the wife of one of his accomplices, who had died very suddenly, had been poisoned by them. After his release from the penitentiary Williamson went to Kansas, but remained there only a short time and came to Missouri, settling in this (Pettis). County. When a young man Williamson had a severe attack of typhold fever, which resulted in paralysis of his right side. Those who know him well regard Williamson as simple minded.

ANOTHER SITE TO BE SELECTED FOR THE NEW ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.

The Old Church Destroyed by Fire Last Night-Dr. Holland to Hold Services To-Morrow in Addington Hall-History of St. George's Church. The most disastrous church fire in St. Loui

The most disastrous church fire in St. Louis since the burning of the Second Baptist Church on Beaumont and Locust streets, about twelve years ago, occurred last night, and this morning St. George's Episcopal Church, just three blocks south of ithe Second Baptist, is in ruins—the steeple fallen and broken into many pieces, the roof of the main building burned away, the interior filled with brick and dirt and mortar and charred timbers, and the beautiful chapel adjoining the main structure almost entirely burned out from basement floor to the roof. The church stood on the northwest corner of Beaumont and Chestnut streets and was one of the largest as well as one of the handsomest and most richly furnished houses of worship in St. Louis. During the afternoon services had been held in the main building, and it is supposed that the fire started from the furnace in the basement of the chapel, as the blaze was first discovered in that part of the building. Detective Harrington made the discovery shortly before 9 o'clock and sent the Fire Department an alarm from box 334, but the engines of that district were at work at the time on a stable fire a few blocks away, and it was fully fifteen minutes before the department commenced playing on the church fire. The sexton who had the keys could not be found for some time, and considerable delay was occasioned in battering in the heavy doors of the chapel. In the meantime the fire had spread to nearly every portion of the chapel, and had made its way into the fire had spread to nearly every portion of the chapel, and had made its way into the steeple and the main building. Chief Lindsay ordered a second elarm turned on and then a third alarm, which brought about half of the entire Fire Department to the scene.

entire Fire Department to the scene.

FRIENDS OF THE FIRED.

Ladders were raised and streams poured into and onto the building from all points, but the slate shingles defied the firemen and nothing they could do could save roof or steeple. The latter finally fell with a terrible crash across the roof of the chapel and onto some sheds on the opposite side of the alley, and then the firemen breathed more easily, as they could work now without fear of being some sneds on the opposite side of the alley, and then the firemen breathed more easily, as they could work now without fear of being caught by the tottering tower. Scarcely anything was saved from the rich furnishings of the church. The choir boys carried out the large cross and solid sliver communion service, and the Salvage Corps saved a few articles. The boys' and girls' library, comprising 2,000 volumes, was badly damaged, many of the books being burned up, and the $12,000 organ was ruined.

TO REBUILD ON ANOTHER SITE.

While the damage to the main building and chapel might be repaired at small cost beyond the amount of the insurance, the trustees will probably decide to rebuild on another site, as some of them do not like the old location. Holland said this morning that he was in favor of abandoning the present location and building on a this morning that 'he was in favor of abandoning the present location and building on a new one further west. He thinks that with the insurance and the amount realized from the sale of the old property, they will not need more than $50,000 to enable them to put up one of the grandest churches in the city on or near Grand avenue, and he is satisfied that the needed $50,000 will be forthcoming at the proper time.

WILL SMASH THE TRUST.

A Chicagoan's New Process of Making

CHICAGO, Ill., March 21 .- G. G. Coleman of this city claims to have discovered a method of manufacturing white lead in such a cheap of manufacturing white lead in such a cheap, quick way that the trust which now controls the production of the staple must go to smash. He has already exhibited to a number of Chicago paint dealers some white lead said to have been made by his process and they declared the article to be of good grade. Coleman proposes to form a company and erect a large plant. It is hinted that he has already had an offer from the trust for his secret. The process, if there is one, has not been explained further than it requires only fifty-two hours as against sixty days by the old method, and that no acids are necessary. The basic material used is pig lead.

THINKS THERE'S NOTHING IN IT.

President Thomas Richeson of the Collier White Lead Co., the largest local plant in the National Lead Trust, was seen by a PostDISPATCH reporter relative to the alleged discovery this morning.

"I have never heard of this process of Coleman's," said Col. Richeson, "but I am strongly inclined to believe there is nothing in it. There have been so many marvelous discoveries reported that were to revolutionize the process of mrnufacturing white lead, and that afterwards amounted to nothing, that I put very little confidence in the numerous claims of experimenters that they have at last discovered the secret. In the past few years over $2,000,000 have been spent in attempts to find a practical short process of manufacture of white lead, but without sucfew years over $3,000,000 have been spent in attempts to find a practical short process of manufacture of white lead, but without success. The Carter Co. of Omaha, Neb., has come the nearest to it, and they are now making white lead by a process that requires only about forty eight hours for manufacture. But their process is not exactly practicable, as it leaves the manufactured product lacking in the necessary proportion of carbonate of lead and has not the lasting quality so essential to white lead products. I doubt very much if Coleman has received an offer from the Trust for his secret, and I am very sure that the holders of Trust certificates need not be alarmed over the probability of the Coleman discovery 'smashing the National Lead Trust.' If he has really discovered a sure process of quick manufacture of white lead, however, he will have no trouble in realizing a fortune from it.'

EQUITABLE BUILDING ings has introduced the micral saring stamp system. The company has issued to its agents, whose names and addresses appear below, a large number of green gummed stamps about the size of a postage stamp, each one of which, when pasted in one of the company's 5-cent savings books, has a deposit value of 5 cents. Any person desiring to open a small savings account goes to the company's most convenient agent, buys one or more 5-cent saving book, each page of which is divided into twenty squares of such size that one 5-cent saving book, each page of which is divided into twenty squares of such size that one 5-cent saving may be readily pasted within each square. When all the squares on one leaf are filled the leaf represents $1. The depositor then signs his name, age and address on the gummed label in the back of the 5-cent saving book and sends through an agent, or brings the filled leaf and label to the company, and receives a deposit book, showing a credit to the depositor of $1. The depositor then begins to fill another page with the stamps, which is again sent to the company when full, and so on. One or more leaves may be deposited at a time. These stamps can be purchased
